SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY
FALL 2018
First-Year Eligible Courses

ANTH 011-010: Cultural Diversity and Human Nature
CRN 42908; 4 credits (SS)
TR 9:20 – 10:35am
A cross-cultural investigation of variation in human societies. Examines forms of social organization, kinship, religion, symbolism, and language through the consideration of specific cultural case studies in local and global contexts. Students will learn how anthropological research methods enhance understanding of contemporary social issues, help solve real-world problems, and foster an informed perspective on what it means to be human.

Patterns of social interaction, group behavior and attitudes provide a focus on the relationship of the individual to society. Social structure and social change within the institutions of society provide a focus on the relationship of society to the individual. The influences of social class, gender and race are explored at each level of analyses. Theories, methods and research results provide micro and macro models for understanding society.
Professor Ziad Munson
